WE NOMINATE

Herbert Windsor Hobler, energetic, 39-year old "idea man," one of whose brain children is the United Festival of Song which this coming Wednesday and Thursday evenings (February 7th and 8th) will hold the community spotlight in McCarter Theatre for the third successive year. Where the first two highly successful Festivals, melding the efforts of a dozen musical organizations, were keyed to the United Fund's area-wide campaign, next week's jamboree will help launch a Fund undertaking of far-reaching significance—the Memorial Foundation of the United Fund, the equivalent on the local level of a Ford or Rockefeller Foundation, that will provide income for "continuous community planning and strengthening the services in health, recreation, family and child care."

To the United Fund, which he serves as a Trustee as well as Director of Publicity, the Missouri-born Hobler brings the verve and salesmanship associated with the mushrooming "television industry." As the United Fund has gradually, and necessarily, raised its sights and has succeeded in topping a $250,000 goal, Hobler has been applying to community affairs the knowledge and experience he has garnered in some 15 years in radio and television. It was with good reason that the Fund's governing board presented volunteer Hobler with the challenge of formally introducing Princeton to the concept of a continuing endowment program supplementing Annual Giving efforts.

The youngest son of a nationally recognized advertising specialist, and a full-time Princetonian since entering the University in 1940, Hobler, after compiling an outstanding record as a B-29 navigator in World War II "climbed in" on the ground-floor of radio-television. He started out with the Mutual Broadcasting System in 1946, swung over to National Broadcasting as one of the first five salesmen for the NBC television network, then put in two years with CBS. Prior to taking over his present responsibilities as General Sales Manager of Videotape Productions of New York, he was vice-president in charge of sales of the TelePrompTer Corporation as well as an independent sales management consultant in a ruggedly competitive field.

Hobler, active in University affairs for the past 16 years and remembered as an award-winner in three sports, is numbered among the relatively few Princeton-New York commuters who shoulder heavy "extra-curricular burdens" in Princeton. In addition to his major participation in the operations of the United Fund, he has been chairman of the YMCA's membership campaign and continues to serve the "Y" as a Director. The First Presbyterian Church and the Synod of New Jersey provide other outlets for his energies. Now in his sixth year as an Elder of the First Church, he is also chairman of the Church Hospitality Committee and a board member of the Synod's active Radio and Television Committee.

Concerned with all facets of Princeton life, including municipal politics, the improvement of municipal services, and the development of "open" inter-racial housing, Hobler may be approaching the point when his professional interests will shift from the national networks to area radio coverage. There is strong evidence that the Nassau Broadcasting Company, which he brought into being three years ago for the purpose of operating Princeton's first commercial AM radio station, will this spring conclude its protracted negotiations and will be given authorization by the Federal Communications Commission to start full-scale broadcasting in September.

For the enthusiasm with which he has endowed all those taking part in the United Festival of Song; for his contributions over the years to a variety of service activities; for his devotion to what he feels are Princeton's "best interests"; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

WE'RE RUNNING: Six candidates for the Borough School Board are running for the three available positions, and all six addressed the League of Women Voters' school-candidates meeting at Nassau Street School Monday night. This Is PRINCETON

1 COMMUNITY, NOT 2

School Consolidation Asked. One of the most refreshing "open letters" written by a group of Princeton residents to their governing bodies in many years is published on page 15 of this week's issue of TOWN TOPICS. It is a soft-spoken, well-conceived, highly-logical "reminder" that needless inefficiency exists within the Princeton community because the lack of consolidation perpetuates duplication of effort.

The 43 men and women whose signatures the letter bears make one point at the outset which, it may be hoped, will one day seem incredible to descendants of present-day Princetonians. They report that as Borough residents, many of their children who live directly across the street from the Riverside School must be driven daily a mile and a half through heavy traffic to the Borough's Nassau Street School — because consolidation of Princeton's schools has no part in the present-day picture.

The letter stands on solid ground, asserting that "under the present system . . . the Boards of Education are not able to serve the school children of Princeton in the most efficient manner," and pointing out that the cost of sending a Borough child across the street to the Township's Riverside School "costs a prohibitive $525."

The petitioners ask no overnight miracles—"we are striving rather to promote intelligent long-range community planning." Hopefully, the busy, dedicated members of the two municipal governing bodies and the school boards will make time to give this "reminder" their utmost consideration.

Progress Report: "None." It is, actually, the letter's use of the word "reminder" that makes its whole approach to the problem so valid. Despite periodic lip-service to the question of consolidation for more than three decades, definitive action to make it a reality is far less advanced than this nation's program to place a man on the moon.

Among the interesting facts set forth in the letter is the result of a straw vote conducted among the 43 Borough residents who signed it. No less than 35 of them favor consolidation—not just at the school level, but of the municipalities themselves. It could be a straw in the wind.

It is nearly a decade ago that an emotion-packed, rumor-laden campaign defeated the referendum seeking to effect consolidation. A great deal within the Princeton community has changed since then, but the basic point remains crystal clear: duplication of effort, inability to serve efficiently, and needless expense to the taxpayer are the primary products of failure to consolidate.

It is wholly logical that the suggested merger of Princeton's two school systems could be the sensible fore-runner of consolidation at the municipal level.

The Candidates' Views. The subject of consolidation erupted spontaneously Monday night at the school candidates' meeting held at Nassau Street School by the League of Women Voters.

The first question, following the candidates' statements, came from the Rev. David H. McAlpin, Jr., who asked about school consolidation in the light of Borough plans to build on Township land.

"The Township Board of Education is coping with this question," replied Leonard Hymerling, Township Board member seeking re-election. "For myself, I like the idea of consolidation because it would put kindergarten through 12th grade under one administration."

Mrs. Grace Loetscher, running for re-election to the Borough Board, said she was against school consolidation "right now," but expressed the opinion that, if consolidation did come, it would be most useful to have schools on the Walnut Lane property now being sought from Westminster Choir College.

Ever Asked? "I don't think the citizens want school consolidation," Mrs. Loetscher observed.

"Have you ever asked them?" retorted Mrs. Sarah K. Strayer, also a candidate for Borough School Board.

Mrs. Loetscher said she thought that the pattern of Borough-Township cooperation, now being followed, should continue.

"Consolidation couldn't do any more than cooperation now does," observed Bryan V. Moore, also running for Borough re-election, "But there could be more cooperation."

"Gerrymandered nonsense" was the term used by Borough candidate Walter D. Wagoner to describe the situation of Riverside children who live across the street from a school, but must be driven a mile and a half to Nassau Street.

"You'd never run a business that way," he continued. "Think of the time, energy and money that consolidation of the schools would save!"

Tax? Dr. Henry Abrams, another incumbent seeking re-election, said he did not think that Borough voters would be willing to absorb under consolidation, the tax differential between the two municipalities, and said he did not think there had ever been a lack of communication between the two Boards.

Robert Palmer, also a candidate, said that a merger of the two school districts would ultimately allow the Borough to handle its problems more effectively, and said he would

Confessions by TORTURE

A. N. SPANEL, Chairman
International Latex Corporation

Four French diplomats are on trial in Cairo, charged with espionage and plotting to overthrow the present regime of Egypt and dictator Nasser. It is unfortunate that the proceedings are being reported only scantily in the American press — especially since American policy and American conscience are deeply involved.

Soon after the arrest of the Frenchmen in cynical violation of their immunity, Nasser's government announced that they had "confessed." But why would seasoned diplomats, even if guilty, choose to admit everything so readily when they had the option of silence? The affair defied common sense. It reeked with the all too familiar totalitarian techniques of brainwashing and torture chambers.

This we did not hesitate to say, in these columns, though we did not have "proof" beyond the logic of the situation. There might have been those who thought we were jumping to rash conclusions. Now, in the courtroom, our worst fears have been confirmed.

According to a dispatch from Cairo reported in The New York Times on Sunday, January 28th, one of the defendants, Jean-Paul Bellivier, has repudiated his "confessions," revealing that they had been exacted under vicious physical and mental duress.

He signed the so-called confessions, M. Bellivier told the court, "under physical and mental constraint — in other words, physical and nervous fatigue, lassitude and mental anguish under police interrogation based exclusively on completely forged documents." He declared himself prepared to identify his tormentors.

M. Bellivier went on to describe how he had been thrown on the ground, stripped and systematically beaten. He had finally signed papers incriminating himself and his colleagues, as the Cairo dispatch sums it up, "under threats of murder, torture and brainwashing."

We reprint below pertinent passages from our first article on the arrests in the hope of helping alert Americans to their responsibility in the shocking state of affairs in Nasser's prison-land.

The column published on December 5, 1961, titled "Why Give Aid to This Dictator?" said in part:

"The stellar role in Nasser's police thriller has been assigned to France. Other free nations — Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Japan, Israel are implicated in supporting roles.

"Four French diplomats, members of an official Commission which has been in Cairo for 18 months negotiating about sequestered French properties, are cast as the main plotters. And at least two of them, Henri Mouton and Jean-Paul Bellivier, allegedly "confessed" within three or four days after their arrest.

"The fantasy is as clumsy as it is unconvincing. If the French Government were plotting a coup d'etat in Egypt, as charged, it would hardly entrust the delicate enterprise to diplomats living in glass houses — men who were under constant surveillance, their phones tapped, their every conversation and contact monitored. The Swiss Embassy, ever jealous of its reputation as an honest neutral, would hardly have joined such a harebrained undertaking. Only a dictatorship with a tough hide and an addiction to the Big Lie would dare to compound such absurdities.

"Evidently Nasser has been an apt pupil of both the Red and the Brown practitioners of torture-confessions. After all, even if the French diplomats were guilty, common sense is our guarantee that they would not have confessed it all so promptly and obligingly, as Cairo wants the world to believe they did. The odor of the torture chamber and the pharmacopoeia of brain-numbing drugs, hang thick over the whole affair.

"Nasser began his unsavory career with a fantastic piece of larceny when he seized the Suez Canal. Unfortunately he was allowed to keep the loot, so that today he alone decides what countries may or may not use that vital artery of world commerce. Since then he has applied his talents for thievery by seizing all attractive private businesses and fortunes in his own country. And now he caps the systematic looting with a plot-and-purge sensation of the familiar Nazi and Communist type. His contempt for world opinion seems to have grown in direct ratio to his political and economic failures.

"America's burdened taxpapers have been loading this dictator with millions in loans and grants, thereby helping to subsidize his crimes and insults even to the point of badgering and torturing the plenipotentiaries of France, our traditional Ally.

"If Nasser's Egypt continues to get away with its highhanded conduct, it will assuredly provide a tempting example to other predatory dictators. They will see it as proof that they can engage in large-scale larceny studded with torture without risking the loss of American aid.

"How long shall we subsidize with taxpayers' dollars evil dictatorships that engage in torture, steal private property, defy the conscience of free men?"

These views have been amply justified by events. They are certain to be further supported as other defendants testify. In the name of justice, self-respect and self-interest, reappraisal of United States policy vis-a-vis Nasser can no longer be postponed. We owe it to ourselves, to France, our traditional ally, and to the free world.

MORE APARTMENTS?

In Borough and Township. Two new multiple housing apartments were proposed for the Princeton community this week, one in the Borough and one in the Township.

In the Borough, Dr. James McCord, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, paid a personal call on residents of Edgehill Street and Library Place to sound them out on a 28-apartment faculty housing group which the Seminary would like to build on Library Place, running through the block to Edgehill.

Opposition to the plan developed almost immediately, and residents of Edgehill will hold a meeting Monday night at the home of Kenneth S. Outerbridge, 35 Edgehill, to discuss the situation and try to learn how many neighbors are definitely opposed.

Seminary plans call for six units made of brick, frame and stone. The project would be known as the Charles R. Erdman Memorial Faculty Residences after the faculty member who lived for many years on the proposed apartment site. The Erdman home was razed by the Seminary last August Permit Required. In order to build the apartments, the Seminary will need either a special permit or a use variance from the Borough. Because the land lies adjacent to, although across the street from Seminary land, it might qualify under zoning laws for a special permit. Otherwise, a use variance from Borough Council will be necessary.

The land lies in an R-1 (single-family dwelling) residential zone. No standards for apartments exist for such a zone, according to Arthur Brokaw, Borough engineer, because it was not designed for apartments, so a zoning board decision would depend on the plot plan submitted by the Seminary. The Board would set the standards the Seminary would have to follow.

Mrs. Robert V. C. Whitehead, Jr., 16 Edgehill, says that her main concern is the traffic which would be generated by the apartments, and adds that she thinks Edgehill is too crowded now. She estimates that the apartments would house about 85 persons, with a 112 maximum.

Mrs. Pamela Dickinson, 28 Edgehill, says, "I am definitely opposed to the present plans. I don't see how 28 families can live in garden apartments in space zoned for one-family homes unless we scrap all our zoning laws."

Lewis B. Cuyler, 32 Edgehill, says he found the plans pleasing, and would not object to the project. He says that his only objection might be based on traffic, but adds, "What else can you expect the Seminary to do with that land?"

With Mrs. Theodore Kelly, 26 Library Place, he expressed pleasure at the Seminary's plans to leave standing all the large trees on the property. Mrs. Kelly says that she and her husband would probably not object.

Own 400 in Township? Permission to build a 432-apartment project on North Harrison in the Township will be presented to the Zoning Board at its February 15 hearing.

The developers are the Princeton Terrace Apartment Company of Philadelphia, a group which includes the owner of the property, Joseph C. Sarajian.

On the 27-acre plot, seven blocks north of the Shopping Center, Princeton Terrace proposes to erect 18 buildings with 432 apartments at an estimated cost of $5 million.

The apartments, in the "middle-high bracket," according to Ernest Glickman, attor-

Cory S Kammler

The other day a friend was telling us some interesting things about habit . . . the tendency of all things in nature to settle into fixed ways of doing things. It seems that in addition to the invariable pattern of everything in the universe, the habit of doing things always in the same way reaches down to the smallest ideas and things we know and do For example, all trees of one species grow in a definite form, such as the elm has the habit of spreading All cud-chewing animals such as cows, camels, goats, deer, etc. always rise rear end first, while all our other four-footed friends get up front end first (And my friend says that mama cow doesn't have to admonish each calf with "now remember dear, always get up rear end first." Most of us, as another example, always put on a coat right arm first If you don't think so, try putting on your coat left arm first. Such habits have nothing to do with conscious thoughts But that's where we humans add something else. Besides unconscious habit we form habits that are the product of our thinking, and they are the ones that can be good or bad Thank goodness, in our business everyone trys to put good habits to work for you, and we really try to stamp out a bad action before it can become a habit If you ever see us starting a bad one, please tell us about it at once. take steps to look into consolidation, if he were elected

"Building of the Walnut Lane schools would force a review of the relationship between Borough and Township school districts," he commented "The proposed site is surrounded on three sides by the Township, so many children who live next to the new school would not be able to attend"

He suggested a plan for mutual tuition payments between the two Boards, allowing children to attend whichever school was closest to their homes.

Mrs Strayer said she thought consolidation would offer a better system for both communities, and pointed out that it would permit neighborhood schools for elementary school children.

"My Position." Candidates who seek positions on the Board for the first time gave these reasons for running

● Mr. Palmer. The Board is too self-perpetuating, is out of touch with the public and is not positive enough about suggesting new ideas. I favor purchase of the Westminster land, but do not believe the problem was thoroughly explored by the Board

● Mrs. Strayer: There is not enough striving, the Board is too complacent. Many of us want a chance to serve and to offer ourselves to the community, and we feel that Board members serve for too many years.

● Mr. Wagoner Our schools should be judged by the best schools in the country, not merely pointed out as better than the general run We need a capable and vigorous Board more in touch with the public and cognizant of its leadership.

In the Township. Only 17 residents of the Township—three of them teachers—turned out Thursday for the annual budget hearing

Ledlie Laughlin asked why so few were present, and Mrs Jess Epstein, president of the Board, said that the Board would certainly like to have a greater turn-out.

She said that 1500 budget brochures had been mailed, one to each PTA family, and added that the Board hoped the meagre attendance indicated community "satisfaction" with Board procedures

She said that, in a good year, only 25-30 percent of the voters take part in a school election, although school taxes account for over half the total tax bill of the Township.

Richard Pearson, of the Board, said that there was usually a 20 percent negative vote in any election, and one member of the audience said that Township residents should not stay home from an election just because budgets have always passed before.

"I came here tonight to hear why anybody would object to this budget, not to object myself," he commented.

Highlights of the Board's exposition of its budget.

● $5,000 was lopped from the budget after the Community Park school bonds were sold at 3 1/4 percent, instead of the expected 3 3 4

● Township teachers' salaries are in the top 10-20 percent in the state.

● Dr. John McKenna, superintendent of schools, plans to explore programmed instruction (teaching machines) and three teachers are now experimenting with writing a math program.

● Purchase of the $6,000 bus will eliminate two $4,000 bus runs.

● The per-pupil cost in the Township is $525.

● Voters in both municipalities will go to the polls on Tuesday, February 13, to pass on the budgets and to elect members to the school boards.

PERSONALITIES

Dr. Thomas H. Johnson, for the past quarter-century a member (and now chairman) of the English Department at The Lawrenceville School, in whose honor a chair has been endowed Headmaster Bruce McClellan announced this week that an anonymous parent, the father of several Lawrenceville alumni, has made possible establishment of the chair, which Dr. Johnson will hold first and which will be named for him at his retirement.

Mrs. Robert V. C. Whitehead, Jr., 16 Edgehill Street, who was convinced she was the victim of a practical joke when a telephone call Saturday afternoon informed her that she had won the Smith College Club raffle for a $500, all-expense trip to Bermuda. To make sure her good fortune is no day-dream, Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead will cash the winning ticket by spending a week on the sunny south Atlantic island some time this spring.

ROUND-UP

When the thermometer reached 48 Saturday for the second straight day there were a couple of inches of water on top of Carnegie's ice . . . but when it dipped to 18 . . . on Sunday, the Sabbath skaters were at it again in full force.

Tuesday morning produced a scattering of light snow, but the month bowed out with less than half an inch—sharp in contrast to the 11 inches of January '61 . . . by February 1 last year, a total of 35 inches had fallen . . . will this year's mild winter be topped by a March blizzard, as has been the case in similar seasons of the recent past?

No solicitation of funds is being made by the Soroptimist Club of Princeton, Mrs Edna Mulvey, treasurer, told TOWN TOPICS this week . . . she reports that an out-of-town organization with a similar name is active along such lines, but that Princeton merchants should not be led to believe that the money raised will benefit the community in any way.

Both drivers involved in the car-fire engine collision on Nassau near Harrison January 15 have been ticketed by Borough Police for careless driving . . . Alfred Kornegay, 38, 302 John Street, was behind the wheel of the car and George B. Rollings, 37, 16 Pelham Avenue, was driving the fire engine on the way to a fire in a University dormitory that was extinguished before firemen arrived on the scene.

Sneak thieves steadily at work: a plastic car cover (worth $14) stolen from Miss S. T. Scott, 8 Greenholm . . . a shoulder bag, plus jewelry worth $55, stolen from a car owned by Miss Linda Maxwell, 219 Edgerstoune . . . a jacket worth $65 taken from a car owned by James A. McFadden, 152 Mount Lucas Road.

An automobile owned by Lester Tibbals, Jr., 131 Randall Road, missing from Baker Rink one afternoon at 3.30, recovered by 7:20 that night . . . those who "borrowed" it tabbed by police more as joy-riders than car thieves

Whereas Princeton Township showed a $5,000,000 increase in rateables for 1962, the Borough has lost $888,000 . . . Pennington and Hightstown are other municipalities showing decreases, with the chief reasons the $800 reduction in assessment allowed those over 65 and the end of the personal property tax . . . Lawrence Township gained $1,200,000 and West Windsor $1,900,000.

Winter's Whistling

It started out
One day to snow,

Things are this season.

Whether the wind had a reason or not, it blew all that mild weather into the freezer. From Monday's high of 47, the temperature tumbled 36 degrees in ten hours. That equals 11.

Starting Thursday, a gradual warming trend will be felt, but even the high for the next three or four days is not expected to be above the mid-thirties. For those who look ahead, Ground Hog Day (Friday) is expected to be clear and his shadow will show.

News Of The THEATRES

THE MOON IS DARK

Witchcraft Play To Open. With a cast drawn from Princeton, neighboring communities and the off-Broadway theatre, "Dark of the Moon," a drama about witchcraft in the southern mountains, will be presented on the McCarter stage this Friday and Saturday under the direction of Brooks Jones.

Norman Walker, young choreographer and dancer, will carry the principal male role of "Witchboy," and will dance the sequences that he himself has choreographed.

Opposite him will be Suzanne Harvey, most recently seen in the Kazan film, "Splendor in the Grass," and also noticed for her portrayal of Anne Frank in "The Diary of Anne Frank" in stock.

Princeton residents in the production will be Edward Callanan, Gary Ellis and Karl Light. A newcomer to the Princeton theatrical scene will be Elizabeth Perguson, well-known as a gospel singer and a member of the Prin-Trons singing group.

Dance Song. Carol Estey will dance the role of the blond witch and Cora Cahan will dance the dark witch. Mrs. Emery Battis of Franklin Park, Gregory Prestopino of Roosevelt, Eve Johnson and Mary Wolden from the Ecothills Playhouse, Middlesex, and Peter Boardman round out the cast.

TO APPEAR IN FOLK DRAMA: Norman Walker appears as the "Witchboy" and Suzanne Harvey as the Smoky Mountain girl who falls under his spell. It's all in "Dark of the Moon," on view this weekend at McCarter.

Jacob Landau of Roosevelt has designed the sets and Bob Yellin, banjoist with the "Greenbriar Boys" has been assigned the banjo accompaniment.

Tickets are $1.90 and $2.90. The best hundred seats at each performance have been set aside for "angels" who contribute $5 or more, in addition to the ticket price.

CEYLON CLANS TO DANCE

In Traditional Forms. Grotesque mask dances, the celebrated Kandy dances and a gripping fire dance in which the dancer becomes a human torch to frighten away demons, will be presented with the Ceylon National Dancers come to McCarter Theatre next Friday at 8:30 p.m.

All members of the troupe belong to the traditional "dancing clans" of Ceylon, whose members are intimately familiar with the folk and traditional dances of the people.

The group is appearing in the United States for the first time, performing under the sponsorship of the Asia Performing Arts Program. Tickets for the McCarter appearance are available at $2.90 and $3.90 at the theatre or at Male's Book Shop, 203 Nassau.

REQUIRED: McCARTER

Theatre Is Study Aid. The Elizabethan repertory season, now in the wings for McCarter, has been designated "required reading" for many adult education courses.

Directors of such courses in various communities have conferred with Milton Lyon, executive dir ector of the theatre, to work out plans incorporating live theatre into live courses.

From February 24 until April 8, McCarter will present, in repertory, Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," Ben Johnson's "Alchemist," John Webster's "Duchess of Malfi" and Beaumont and Fletcher's "Knight of the Burning Pestle."

Classroom discussion of the plays specifically, and the Elizabethan period generally, will be augmented by attendance at McCarter. Special rates are available to adults enrolled in "Great Plays" courses.

PLAYHOUSE RETURNS

To McCarter Theatre. The Traveling Playhouse will return to McCarter Theatre Tuesday with a production of the "Wizard of Oz." This will be the second play in the current series sponsored by the Borough Parent-Teachers Association.

All of the favorite characters—from Dorothy and the Tin Woodman to the Wizard himself—will appear in the production. The play will be interspersed with music from the movie version of this children's classic.

Tickets for this performance are 60 cents, $1.00 and $1.50. Reservations may be obtained from Mrs. W. V. O'Neil, 115 Lafayette Road, between 1 and 3. The McCarter box office will handle tickets only on the day of the performance.

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Innocents (January 31-February 3). Fine acting, writing, direction and photography make this film, based on Henry James' ambiguous horror tale, "The Turn of the Screw," one of the really top-flight American suspense pictures. Director Jack Clayton ("Room at the Top") paced the film carefully to extract the maximum suspense and horror from the story.

Deborah Kerr turns in a flawless performance, possibly the finest one of her career, as an English governess who becomes convinced that some evil force is trying to take possession of the two pure and innocent children in her charge. James' original story left the reader to determine whether the evil force is really the ghosts of the dead gardener and his mistress or whether it is a product of the governess' own frustrations. Screenwriter Truman Capote develops the latter view.

The photography is superb in creating atmosphere, as Clayton takes advantage of the black-and-white wide-screen camera to explore every corner of the old English country estate. Everything builds brilliantly to a breath-taking, hysterical climax. Comment: a re-turn of the screw.

Bachelor Flat (February 4-6) marks the first American-made film by England's gap-toothed Terry-Thomas and shows all the Hollywood inadequacies in producing good English slapstick comedy. Thomas, who spends most of the picture running around in his shorts, still gets his laughs, but they are diluted by the over-use of cinemascope, color, etc., etc.

The fairly complex plot, which is surprisingly unnecessary to the picture, concerns Thomas as a professor of ar-chacology at a California college where most of the girl students have a crush on him. Tuesday Weld plays Thomas' fiancee's daughter. Miss Weld, incidentally, looks much better in shorts than Thomas.

NEVER A SUNDAY: Lovely Tuesday Weld lends her obvious charms to the crazy goings-on in "Bachelor Flat," showing Sunday through Tuesday at The Playhouse. English comic Terry Thomas is also featured in the color slapstick comedy.

Richard Beymer (much better as Tony in "West Side Story") and Celeste Holm are wasted in supporting roles. The best humor is pure slapstick, and the high point comes when a drunken Thomas keeps hiding a series of women under his bed as another comes to the door of the apartment. Comment: "I Love Lucy" — on campus.

Tender Is the Night (February 7-13) is another film that has difficulty in overcoming Hollywood techniques. Ivan Moffat (who added the two most powerful scenes in "Giant" to the movie version of Edna Ferber's novel) has done a magnificent job of giving fully-developed characters to F. Scott Fitzgerald's nebulous nonentities.

Then, however, director Henry King comes in with his cinemascope and color camera to take beautiful shots of the French Riviera and the Swiss countryside and the story occasionally gets lost amid the scenery. When the story is found, though, it is due to the acting genius of Jason Robards, Jr., as a man who fatally gives all his love to a dominant woman.

The story concerns Robards as a psychiatrist who is taking care of Jennifer Jones, a young American neurotic. He falls in love with her, but as she becomes stronger, he becomes weaker and more dissipated. Finally, he comes brilliantly to realize the futility of his life. Paul Lucas is excellent as the "wise old doctor," modeled after the late Carl Jung. Comment: spotty. F. Scott, saved by acting and writing.

THE GARDEN

The Joker (February 1-6). Scene: a bedroom. A noise on the stairs. Exit (by window), the lover. Enter (by door) the husband. And as the lover furtively makes his way across the Parisian rooftops, we are into another fast and funny bedroom farce which only the French can make successfully.

Jean-Pierre Cassel has the lead role of a carefree bachelor who makes his hair-breadth escape at the beginning of this film. It comes to a sudden end when he drops into the garden of Anouk Aimee. As soon as Miss Aimee's husband is out of the way, the joker can begin his romantic campaigning anew. He becomes bored and almost vows to give up chasing women, but happily, his eye is caught by a kitchen maid and he is off again.

The picture is standard farce, competently presented. Philippe deBroca, who directed Cassel in "The Love Game," plays down serious comment or satire and concentrates on fun. The result is refreshing. Miss Aimee is saucy and seductive. Comment: a successful exercise in an old, old form.

Madame Butterfly (February 7, only) is Puccini's opera masterpiece, told in English. Featuring Michiko Tanaka and Nicola Filacuridi, the film is a cinematographic masterpiece, if not operatic. It mixes beautifully the dramatic skills of

WE DANES—AND YOU

ODD INFORMATION ABOUT DENMARK

Denmark's Singularities, which will surely not frighten the foreigner too much.

GOING to bed in Denmark entails covering oneself with a "Dyne." This is a sort of cushion, rather bigger (as a rule) than oneself and stuffed with feathers. Those unaccustomed to a "Dyne" run the risk of the illusion—it is, we repeat, an illusion—that you are being attacked by it in the middle of the night. Unless you firmly remember this and quietly put it straight you will, inevitably, be forced to give battle to the monster.

It does not do to assume, as a matter of course, that one can get a room with a bath in the smaller Danish hotels. Many cautious visitors take a bath before setting out—and then rely on the sea.

Just after midnight it is general for Danes to break into English whether they can or not.

At parties Danes love to make speeches for their guests, for each other, and for themselves. In spite of this, it is customary for the guests to reply in another speech. It doesn't matter in the least what is said, but it is pleasanter for everybody if the speech is short—unless the guest likes making speeches too, when it is just pleasanter for the others.

Women do not smoke in the streets in Denmark. They smoke everywhere else. Some smoke cheroots and cigars. This indicates nothing at all except that they like the cheroots and cigars better than the available cigarettes.

If Danes experience difficulty in making themselves understood by a foreigner they simply shout louder—just like the foreigner.

Children are nearly always present at the table in Danish homes. Most of them take an unflagging part in the conversation, to the infinite delight of their proud parents and to other people's astonishment.

IT'S NEW To Us

LOVE, FROM 1890

For Valentine's Day. The moral is "never throw anything away." A frugal shopowner from the late 19th century apparently kept this motto in his store-room, and when Febraury 15 came around each year, carefully stored away all the boxes of Valentines he had not sold.

Wherever they came from, at any rate, these old Valentines are now at The Country Mouse, 164 Nassau. They are genuine old Valentines, not reproductions, and they have all the fusty charm of a Victorian parlor.

For $1 each, you may buy pull-outs of shepherdesses and a cupid, with violets. Or a chariot pulled by doves and a spraying profusion of full-blown roses and a cupid or two.

Some are just post-cards, like the one that shows a throbbing heart all covered with ice, or the one that displays, against a gold-striped background, a golden haired girl and "Love."

We were particularly impressed with the envelopes. They are white, embossed with a two-inch deep border of garlanded hearts and flowers. Embossing is a clever idea: why doesn't Hallmark do it today?

Of course, there are bigger Valentines for bigger wallets and bigger passions. A few stand-ups have "Valentine Greetings" pierced out of a gold cardboard heading, and several have three or four different depths, like a scene designed for a play.

We took a fancy to a lad dressed in a Buster Brown suit with a pink sash and gold curls. There's a boy who needs a girl to love him.

The most impressive 70-year-old in this group is a red honeycomb paper carousel — we think it is a carousel — with butterflies and daisies and cupids in reeling splendor.

Should you prefer to make your own antiques, you may buy Country Mouses' envelope of makings for $2.98. This plastic bag (mid-20th century) holds gold paper medallions, festoons of roses with that brightly colored, varnished shine you find in old Valentines, gauze-dressed Cupids with ready arrows and things like gold horse-shoes.

Using these bits and pieces, Mouse's Mr. McDowell has made Valentine candles for your party table. These are thick white cylinders with the gold designs arranged in symmetry with fake rubies and emeralds and some strategic tinsel. They are $2.98 and guaranteed to keep your love burning.

Moderns, of course, will choose the giant (five by 10 inch) cards like the one that shows a 1920's vamp on a gold tiger, or the slightly smaller card that displays only a manicured hand in which is an inebriated cupid saying, "I'm just like putty . . . "

Our favorite in this modern group is one with cupid as Bacchus with grape-vines in his hair.

PRINCETON WRITES

For Academy Anthology. A publishing firm in The Hague has just issued a volume called "Science and the Future of Mankind," in which various scientists and other thinkers express their views on the subject of the volome, under the imprimatur of the World Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Among the contributors is W. Taylor Thom, Jr., of Braeburn Drive, formerly a member of the geology department at Princeton before his retirement. Dr. Thom writes on "Science and Engineering and the Future of Man."

In addition, Robert Oppenheimer expresses his "Thoughts on Art and Science," and the editors have chosen an essay from the writings of Albert Einstein.

The volume is on sale at Male's Book Shop, 203 Nassau.

As you know, Male's now carries various literary and scholarly journals which are not usually available at every newsstand. "X", the American Record Guide, Prairie Schooner, Daedalus, Midstream are a few of the titles, and besides these, there are some not quite so scholarly like Paris Match, the French Vogue and the French woman's magazine called "Marie-Claire." Brush up

Paddle Your Own

Some books seem to be written especially with the long winter armchair in mind and two of these are "Exploring the Little Rivers of New Jersey" and "Forgotten Towns of Southern New Jersey."

Male's Book Shop has both, but never for very long, because Princeton citizens apparently like to sit out the winter by planning what they will do next summer.

"Forgotten Towns" is a paper-back reprint of Henry Charlton Beck's volume (he lives in Lawrenceville) with 56 illustrations and a new foreword.

"Exploring, etc." has sold off the Male shelves in such quantities that Mr. Male thinks the state may have to establish new patrols on small waterways. Providing, of course, that everybody who reads, paddles.

Dear TRAVELEX,

Here we are in England! We're all settled down at the Dorchester hotel, and just because we couldn't help ourselves we called one of the West End tailors and asked them to send 'round one of their men with some samples to have a suit made for "pop"!

We've got our river tour all planned for day after tomorrow and now we're off for another look at the Tower of London. We'll have lunch at the Cheshire Cheese and tonight we're going to take in the show at the Paladium!

We'll stay in England for two more weeks and then we'll be off to Paris.

We've rented a car and intend to make good use of it. There are so many places along the English countryside that we've never had time to see. Before that we thought we'd take a look at this time.

As ever,

Nancy

your nails and your French at the same time.

Back on the book shelves, we find Grove Press' "Seven Plays of Bertolt Brecht" and "In Search of a Character," Graham Greene's two African journals which were kept, apparently without thought of publication, before "A Burnt Out Case" and "Heart of the Matter."

New feature at Male's: a clip-board next to the cash-register with the day's book review from New York Times and New York Herald Tribune. Back ones are allowed to pile up under the clip, so you can refresh your mind about what appeared on Tuesday.

YOU EARLY AMERICAN? Schwartz Is. Lest the customers begin to think that New Brunswick's Schwartz Furniture Company carries nothing but the suavities of Tomlinson's Sophisticate, Mr Schwartz has arranged a long gallery and a special room with nothing but Early American.

Here you will find Pennsylvania House's picture-window table 60 inches long, with two galleried shelves flanking a double door, and the revived tea-wagon in an antique cherry which gives a pleasant brown fruitwood tone to refresh the eye after all the red-dish maple.

Pennsy House will do most of its wooden pieces in color, if you want a bright accent piece. There is a rich, dull gold, bright red, antique white, green or blue. All to order, of course.

The company also has a swivel rocker with solid cherry spindle arms, pleated skirt and small wings. People with bigger wings to accommodate will choose a large Daddy's chair with tufted back, and people who wear hoop skirts will want the formal Queen Anne wing with tapestry upholstery.

Davis makes an early American line, too, but a more citified one than Pennsy House. These pieces, in solid walnut, maple or cherry, have such sophistications as inlaid sprays of leaves and more restraint in the lines.

One imposing Davis piece is the bay-windowed cabinet that stands, hutch-like, on top of a splendid chest with enough doors, shelves and drawers to hold the entire dowry of the mistress of the mansion.

We took a fancy to a 40-inch wide drop-leaf desk with an apothecary chest top embracing 14 small drawers for stamps, bits of string and PTA notes. Three desk-wide drawers below the drop-leaf take care of larger items.

A wall cabinet has eight of these small drawers and two shelves. Below the cabinet stands an enchanting little chest only 10 inches deep and two feet long on Queen Anne legs with four small solid cherry drawers embellished with myrtle burl.

We puzzled for a long time over Drexel's American desk. It is four feet long with two side drawers on the left, like a knee hole, which, in a way, it is.

But on the right-hand top of the desk, like a superstructure, is a slant-topped schoolmaster's desk with a writing surface that lifts up on hinges to expose a compartment as large as depth and half the width of the complete desk top. On the left hand side, above the drawers, the desk is a standard flat-top.

We leave you, dressed in your hunting knee-breeches, at Drexel's hunt board, a strapping fellow six feet long above its gracefully turned legs, with three stout drawers and, if you choose, a splendid hutch on the top to hold — well, trophies?

WHO GHOST THERE: Deborah Kerr is Henry James' harrassed heroine in "The Innocents," showing through Saturday at The Playhouse. A study in suspense, the film is adapted from James' short novel, "The Turn of the Screw."

News Of The Theatres

the Italian movie masters with the color tecniques of the Japanese.

La Dolce Vita (February 8-20, except Feb. 14), Federico Fellini's study of sin and corruption among the middle and upper classes in Rome has already become a classic film, infiltrating and initiating discussions in many fields. It is a picture with no middle ground: one either likes the penetrating revelation of the soul-sickness of modern life or one deplores the immoral sensationalism.

The over-long film runs nearly three hours and is constructed as a series of episodes. Often, too often, actually, the episodes have been cut too abruptly and thus give a choppy motion to the picture. The final, decadent orgy is brilliantly handled, but after three hours, it lacks some of the punch.

Then there is symbolism. A symbol-minded theatre-goers' dream, "La Dolce Vita" ("The Sweet Life") begins with a statue of Christ being flown across the rooftops of Rome by helicopter, while Bikini-clad beauties make eyes at the pilots. It ends with the protagonist waving good-bye to the pure, sweet girl and ahandoning himself to "la dolce vita."

Anita Ekberg and Lex Barker are the only American actors in the film, playing American film personalities. Miss Ekberg's big scene is a dip into the Trevi fountains in an evening gown. Nadia Gray contributes a fine strip-tease to the big orgy, and various other Italian actors contribute many forms of sin. There is no suggestion that human decency and kindness exist. Comment: spotty but powerful, revolting but fascinating; above all, controversial.

ICE CAUSES ACCIDENT

One Injury. Icy roads caused a flurry of accidents late last Wednesday and early Thursday.

Mrs. Nora E. Haverstock, 54, 18 Denow Road, Ewing Township, is recovering in Princeton Hospital from a broken leg which she suffered when she struck another car after a skid into Stony Brook bridge on Stockton Street.

Driving east on Stockton, she slid across the line and struck the car driven by Daniel C. Wright, 42, of Trenton, who sustained a lacerated tongue. In the accident, which occurred at 5:15 a.m. Thursday, Mrs. Haverstock's car was totally demolished. She was taken to Princeton Hospital by the First Aid and Rescue Squad.

Later the same morning, at 7:25, Richard H. Sly, 39, 74 Marion Road East, failed to make the turn as he approached the Kingston bridge driving east. He struck a tank truck driven by John A. De Vito, 45, Euclid Avenue, Kingston, who was crossing the bridge going west.

At 8:55 a.m. the same day, Miss Mary L. Thompson, 19, of Trenton, driving east on Quaker Bridge Road, skidded off the road and broke 40 feet of guard rail before she slid down the bank.

Attempting to stop and help her, Joseph H. Smith, 53, of Trenton, also skidded off the road and into the guard rail.

In another Thursday morning accident, Miss Magdalen Pukk, 26, Arreton Road, skidded while driving east on Washington Road half a mile from Route One, and struck a tree. She was treated at Princeton Hospital for back and shoulder sprains and was released.

The day before, Patrick Nemes, 20, of Route 206, applied his brakes to avoid striking the car in front of him, whose driver had come to a stop, and skidded on the slippery surface of Route 206, leaving the road and striking a tree.

Collision on Nassau. A woman and a 9-year old child were injured Sunday night at 8:25 in an accident at the corner of Nassau and Witherspoon Streets. Borough Police reported that Mrs. Ida Mae Hillman, 20, of 28 Station Drive, Princeton Junction, drove into the rear of a car operated by Walter J. Wojcik, 30, of Sayreville, while Mr. Wojcik was waiting in a westbound lane for the light to change.

Mrs. Hillman, who struck the car in front of her with considerable force, suffered lacerations of the lower lip and abrasions of the knee. A passenger, Lydia Clevenger, of the same Princeton Junction address, was thrown against the windshield and suffered abrasions of the forehead.

Mrs. Hillman's car was severely damaged. Mrs. Wojcik was injured.

Dr. Gaheen's Acceptance at "Man-of-the-Year" Award

I greatly appreciate this award by the Greater Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council.

I feel, however, that the honor bestowed by this award properly belongs not to me but to those many members of the University who have contributed their time and their skills to a wide range of activities: to positions on the Borough Council and Township Committee, the planning, zoning and school boards, Princeton Hospital, the United Fund, and many others.

It appears increasingly evident that residents of the Princeton area are now recognizing that we all share a common concern: the continued well-being of the entire community. The urgent problems growing out of our ever-mushrooming traffic flow, our need for new roads and schools and an adequate library, the questions raised by the expansion of essential municipal services — all call for joint cooperation between Borough and Township officials and an ability on the part of all segments of the community to transcend the limits of narrow self-interest.

I believe that our work in behalf of Princeton's future has only begun. We need constructive thought and thoughtful action. We need sound planning. Above all, we need informed public awareness of the choices that confront us, and a readiness to act in a responsible fashion before it is too late.

It is gratifying that the Chamber of Commerce is taking a broad interest in community problems.

I hope that our municipal officials, the Chamber of Commerce, other service organizations, the University and individual citizens will work ever more effectively together in seeking solutions to the problems which confront the Borough, the Township and our neighboring municipalities.

150 YEARS TO BE MARKED

By Theological Seminary. On Monday, April 23, Princeton Theological Seminary will open its sequicentennial celebration, which will run through commencement in 1963. General Dwight D. Eisenhower is serving as honorary chairman of the committee.

Oldest and largest of the American Presbyterian seminaries, Princeton plans two major lecture series, convocations, scholarly conferences, musical and dramatic programs, and publication of anniversary volumes and conference monographs during the 14-month period. The first convocation will begin on April 23 in the University Chapel, when Paul McKelvey, moderator of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., will speak.

Four churchmen will deliver lectures during a two-week period beginning the same Monday. They are Dr. Karl Barth, Swiss theologian; Dr. D. T. Niles of Ceylon; Dr. James S Stewart of the University of Edinburgh; and Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft of Geneva.

Dr. Eugene C. Blake, stated clerk of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. will give the baccalaureate sermon on June 3, and the Rev. Dr. Franklin C. Fry, president of the United Lutheran Church in America and the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches will deliver the commencement address June 5. Henry R. Luce, editor-in-chief of Time Inc. will present the Alumni Day Challenge to the Church lecture on June 4.

Second Series in Fall. Speakers for the second sesquicentennial lectures in November will be Dr. Kenneth J. Foreman, Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary; Dr. Paul L. Lehmann, of Harvard University Divinity School and a former member of the Seminary faculty; and Dr. John A Mackay, president emeritus of the Seminary and a former president of the International Missionary Council and the World Alliance of Reformed and Presbyterian Churches.

The Seminary has commissioned Roger Sessions and Richard Yardumian to compose two sesquicentennial anthems, and a national competition for a one-act drama on a religious theme will be part of the observance. Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct an orchestral and choral concert by members of the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Westminster Symphonic Choir on November 28.

Other artists and groups who will perform during the celebration are the Bach Aria Group, the Stringart Quartet; Artur Balsam, pianist; Susanne Rowles, harpist; Tucky Ramus, folk singer; and the Seminary Choir, directed by David H. Jones.

A history of the Seminary will be published. Its author is Prof. Lefferts A. Loetscher of the Seminary faculty, who is currently president of the American Church History Association. A companion volume, edited by Prof. H. T Kerr Jr., a Seminary faculty member and editor of the quarterly "Theology Today," will be devoted to the lives of 15 Princetonians.

Prof Charles T. Fritsch of the Seminary faculty will edit a symposium on the history of Caesarea. The material comes from the Link maritime expedition to Caesarea Maritima sponsored by the Seminary in the summer of 1960.

PBA TO DANCE

At Annual Affair. Members of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Local No. 130, will gather this Saturday at the Princeton Inn for their annual dinner-dance. Harry Kahny of the Borough police force and Antonio Diaforli of the Township are co-chairmen.

Mayor Henry Patterson of the Borough and Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman of the Township will be guests. Other members of the guest list include Police Commissioners William Walker of the Borough and Thomas P. Cook of the Township, Magistrates Theodore Tams of the Borough and James Hill of the Township and Prosecutors Kester R Pierson of the Borough and Harvey S. Moore, Jr., of the Township.

THREE MOTORISTS FINED

For Speeding. Three area drivers were fined for speeding by Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams, Jr. in traffic court Monday.

They are Herman Watlington, 47, 408 Princeton Road, Plainsboro, $30; Mrs. Margaret Schmidt, 42, 364 Nassau Street, $18; and Mrs. Rose Delar, 44, Lincoln Highway, Franklin Township, $17. All three pleaded not guilty.

Henry T. Pemberton, 46, 13 Shirley Court, was fined $25 as an unlicensed driver. His wife, Cora, was fined $15 for allowing an unlicensed person to drive. Both pleaded guilty.

In criminal court, Mrs. Lillian Hardgrove, 45, 26 Thompson Street, Raritan, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assaulting Cornellus Kaplan, a Mercer County constable who was the complainant. Police said that Mr. Kaplan had gone to the Madam Swazy Beauty Shop, 203 Witherspoon Street, of which Mrs. Hardgrove is the proprietor, to pick up equipment on which a lien had been placed.

RECEIVES JAIL SENTENCE In Township. Edward Dugger, 33, 12 Leigh Avenue, pleaded guilty to a disorderly charge before Township Magistrate James Hill in a special Saturday session and was sentenced to 30 days in the Mercer County Jail.

Following completion of his jail sentence, Dugger will be placed on probation for five months. The disorderly charge was filed as a result of Dugger's assault and battery against his wife.

AREA LEAGUE PLANNED Meeting This Tuesday. The League of Women Voters will hold a general membership meeting Tuesday at 8:15 in the Valley Road School cafeteria. One of the topics to be discussed will be the possibility of becoming an area league. With this change, the League would be able to take action on matters of concern to either Borough or Township. Currently, only problems which affect both municipalities may be part of the League's program.

League members will vote on the program and the change in status at the annual meeting in April. Mrs. Martin Schwartchild, president, Mrs. Edwin Gatchell, Mrs. David Barge and Mrs. Melvin Gottlieb will conduct Tuesday's meeting.

OPENINGS REMAIN For Adult School Lectures. The lectures in the first series were developed with the Princeton Chapter of the American Association for the United Nations. The first speaker will be Prof. James N. Rosenau of Douglass College, whose topic will be "Public Opinion and Foreign Policy."

An Open Letter To The President:

We Join You in the Peace Race

As individual Americans, we congratulate you for your courageous and inspiring speech before the United Nations in which you call for a peace race instead of an arms race.

You speak for all men when you say we will not be prisoners of circumstances, and that we will make our own history in the light of reason. In a time of confusion and fear, you have invoked the underlying moderation and humanity of the American people. This has strengthened us. Your specific proposals offer a basis for a genuine and honorable peace:

1 War

You make it dramatically clear that "unconditional war can no longer lead to unconditional victory. It can no longer serve to settle disputes . . . man must put an end to war or war will put an end to mankind." You eloquently declare that "together we shall save our planet—or together we shall perish in the flames."

2 Disarmament

You correctly emphasize that the "risks inherent in disarmament pale in comparison to the risks inherent in an unlimited arms race." Courageously you have declared that "men no longer pretent that the quest for disarmament is a sign of weakness—for in a spiraling arms race, a nation's security may well be shrinking even as its arms increase." To this end, we affirm your plan for general and complete disarmament under effective international controls, "abolishing all armies and all weapons except those needed for internal order and a new United Nations Peace Force."

3 United Nations

We agree heartily that the issue of disarmament must be tied to the larger question of security for all nations. You wisely propose the drastic strengthening of the United Nations. We agree with you when you say: "To destroy arms, however, is not enough. We must create even as we destroy—creating world-wide law and law enforcement, as we outlaw world-wide war and weapons."

Each of us urges our friends and colleagues to support the general course you have charted for peace and with the full understanding that it can only be implemented in an atmosphere of mutual interest. We join you in your appeal for a "truce to terror:" "As we build an international capacity to keep peace, let us join in dismantling the national capacity to wage war."

PRINCETON GIRL QUOTED

At FCC Hearing. A nine-year-old Princeton girl's complaints about television has become part of the Federal Communications Commission's current hearing into TV programming, thanks to a letter she sent to President Kennedy.

Gay Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn B. Miller, Jr., of 243 Russell Road, wrote the letter a month ago after watching a horror show. The letter was referred to the FCC and Newton H. Minow, commission chairman, read portions of it at last Friday's session of the hearing.

Gay's letter read:

"Dear President Kennedy:

"I am only 9 years old and may have the wrong idea about television. All I want to say is that some of the programs on TV are just awful. They are all right when you watch them but afterwards—oh, golly!

"I've begun to get hallucinations about giant spiders, live mummies and other kinds of junk. And then some people begin acting like the characters. If the programs don't start to get decent, mommy is going to make us stop watching television. So I hope you will do something about it.

Sincerely,
"Gay Miller"

Minow Asks Help. After reading excerpts from Gay's letter into the hearing, Mr. Minow then appealed to a group of executives from CBS who were appearing as witnesses at the hearing.

"The President can't do anything about it," he said. "It is our hope that you can do something about it."

Gay, a fourth grade student at Johnson Park School, wrote her letter after watching a movie, "The Mummy." Mrs. Miller said that the movie was pretty well started before she realized what Gay was watching.

"I decided to let her see it," Mrs. Miller said. "It was a good horror show—it even frightened me. Things like that should be shown later at night when there is less chance for children to see them."

Nightmare Was Cause. Gay had a nightmare after watching the show and asked her mother what to do about it. Mrs. Miller told her to write a letter and, when Gay asked to whom she should write, Mrs. Miller suggested President Kennedy.

"My husband always says if you want anything done, go to the top," Mrs. Miller said.

Gay had received a reply from an official of the FCC a week or ten days ago. He suggested that she write directly to the television network. Mr. Minow's quotation of Gay's letter came a week later.

MASTER PLAN TOPIC

Of Tuesday Meeting. An official request to Francis Dodd McHugh, planning consultant, to redraft the proposed Master Plan will come up for approval at Tuesday's meeting of the Princeton Borough Planning Board. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Engineering Building, 102 Witherspoon Street.

Decision to request the redrafting was made at last month's meeting of the Planning Board. The purpose, according to the board, is to maintain the present character of Princeton, with homogeneous areas of business, offices and residences.

The board plans to ask Mr. McHugh to devise a minimum plan instead of the maximum plan incorporated in the present proposed Master Plan.

The new draft is to be based on the requirements of the Borough as it now exists, disregarding pressures for more office space. It is to be limited to the needs of the immediate area rather than the proposed seven-mile radius of the present Master Plan.

ART: WHY AND HOW?

School Art is Topic. The art experiences of children from kindergarten through eighth grade will be explored by members of the Johnson Park PTA Tuesday when the group meets at the school at 8 p.m.

School Consolidation Urged.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Enclosed is a copy of an open letter forwarded last week to the Borough Council, the Township Committee and the Boards of Education. Many Princeton residents are now convinced that consolidation of the two school systems would not only facilitate the convenient location of elementary schools, but would also help to maintain and improve the quality of education in the entire community.

HARVEY ROTHBERG
44 Robert Road

Gentlemen:

The undersigned residents of the Borough of Princeton take this means of reminding the governing bodies and the Boards of Education of Borough and Township of a continuing problem for our school children and their parents.

We live within 800 feet of the Riverside School, which is on the edge of Township property on Riverside Drive, and directly across the street from many of our homes. Yet our children must be driven nearly a mile and a half down busy Nassau Street to attend the Borough's Nassau Street School. Those who wish to use the Riverside School across the street would have to pay a prohibitive $525 tuition assessment to the Township. The absurdity of this situation should be obvious.

We maintain that under the present system of school districting, the Boards are not able to serve the school children of Princeton in the most efficient manner.

From the standpoint of primary and secondary education, at least, Princeton is one community, not two. The use of the Borough's high school by 531 Township students, and the recent proposal to build a Borough school facility on Township property, make this abundantly clear.

Most of the undersigned Borough residents — 35 out of 43 by actual count — are in favor of consolidation of Borough and Township. Apparently this is not a practical immediate possibility. Failing this, is it not possible to achieve a greater measure of consolidation than now exists for our school systems? Perhaps a single school district could be set up for all of Princeton.

Such a unified kindergarten-to-high-school system would have many other advantages, including an enhanced ability to attract and hold the most experienced and competent educators. Alternatively, reciprocal tuition payments might be made available from Borough and Township funds for those children who happen to live on the wrong side of the line. Such problems affect Borough and Township children alike, in different areas of Princeton, and the financial burden should be equalized.

We do not know what is the best solution to this admittedly complicated problem. We do believe that the present situation is not a desirable one, and that the best interests of a substantial number of Princeton taxpayers are not now being served in the most effective way.

We do not expect a magical change overnight; we are striving rather to promote intelligent long-range community planning. We are confident that the Borough Council, the Township Committee, and the Boards of Education will do whatever is appropriate to achieve a satisfactory solution.

The letter bears the signatures of Karlene N. Madison, Peter Madison, Viola Ponisi, Eileen B. Cooley, Kenneth C. Cooley, Marilyn S. Dousmanis, George C. Dousmanis, Alvin Bonin, Ruth C. "MANSGROVE" POSTPONED Until March. At the seventh hearing in the "Maosgrove" series last Friday in Township Hall, Theodore T. Tams, Jr., representing the opposition, began the presentation of his case.

Mr. Tams represents the Hillcrest Civic Association whose members are opposed to the construction of the 126 "Mansgrove" garden apartment units. The next hearing in the case will be held on March 9 before the Township Zoning Board.

ARE YOUR GOALS VALID? PTA To Discuss. Setting Valid Goals" will be the topic for discussion at the first of a series of study group meetings to be held in the library of Valley Road School Tuesday at 8 p.m. under the sponsorship of the school's PTA.

Discussion, led by Mrs. Edwin Lotz, will revolve around a film, "The Two-Wheeled Bike," which deals with differences of opinion within a family about the purchase of a bicycle. The film raises questions about family finance, initiative and the setting of valid goals.

At the second meeting on February 14, the topic will be "Developing Initiative in Children." Dr. Simon Marcson will moderate.

Question of the Week

Question: The Kennedy administration has called the five-hour day won by New York electricians "unjustifiable." What is your opinion of the 25-hour work week?

Where asked: Palmer Square

Thomas Matkowski, Philadelphia, steamfitter: It's still too long in my opinion. It should be a 20-hour week to spread the work around even more. Roosevelt did it. He reduced the work week from 60 to 70 hours a week to 40 and made it a federal law. The NRA. The unions are fighting nothing else but automation.

William Novitsky, Hatzelton, Pa. steamfitter: I like it. I say spread the work around and give everybody a chance. And I'll come right out in the open and admit it: I like the idea working less and getting paid more.

Andrew Drummond, Cranbury, plumber. I agree with Kennedy because I think they'll have too many idle hours on their hands and a lot of them will moonlight.

Charles Cook, Morrisville, Pa., electricians' helper: I think it is an answer to automation. I feel it is one way we can create more work for more men. I think it is a good thing.

Irvin Vine, 24 Knoll Drive, dentist: I feel the abuses of this shorter working period for labor will, in the end, force an increase in the cost for all consumer products, thereby perpetuating the very problems for which all of these strikes and social reforms are striving.

Miss Mary Ann Clardy, 182 Snowden Lane, research assistant, Princeton University: I think they're losing the very thing they are trying to gain. The problem apparently is that there are too many electricians and that many are without work. By shortening the work week, they hope to be able to hire more men. What they are doing, however, is making it more enticing and attracting more men, which only increases their problem.

Ellery Calkin, Great Road, Rockwood Dairy employee: I can't understand what they are going to do with their spare time unless they use it to steal jobs away from other electricians. I'm a union man myself but I'm not in favor of a 25-hour week.

Cheney Joseph Jr., Princeton University sophomore: I also feel it is unjustifiable. Leisure is a wonderful thing but I think people tend to abuse it. I think this trend will push the cost of labor far too high. Labor just isn't worth that much money. It's fine for them to make good money but not that much an hour. And it certainly isn't going to add to our national growth to work fewer and fewer hours. It seems to be pointless, we're just sitting on our hands.

Mrs. Joe Westefeld, 39 Rollingmeade, housewife: Frankly, I think people would be happier if they worked a little longer. I think too much idleness gets people into trouble.

Frank Hercegfalvi, Quaker Road, caretaker: I think a five-hour day is a very bad idea. The men will just get to work and before they can do anything, it will be time to go home. A man must be crazy to want to work only five hours a day—it isn't normal to work so little. I think a five-hour day is a very ill service to the country. Russia will be ahead of us completely if this happens. When a good man wants to work just five hours a day, that is a real Communist in my opinion. We are saying, "O.K., Ivan, come on in and take over."

Mrs. S. Robert Lewis, 73 Wilson Road, housewife: I think it gives a lot more leisure to the workers and it's an individual thing whether or not a person can use this extra time to the best advantage. If people can use their leisure time to advantage and if it challenges them, then the five-hour day would be a good thing.

John Marchioni, Anderson Street, Trenton, linotype operator: It's a pretty sad state of affairs when a man doesn't want to work eight hours a day. The end result will be sky-high charges for electrical work and electricians taking jobs from one another.

Howard Eldridge, 139 Jefferson Road, lab technician: Definitely unjustifiable. They claim it gives a man more time to be home and all that but I think it will have a man home too long. Human beings have to be occupied longer than five hours a day in order to keep from going nuts. They'll have to take a second job. I think the wage levels are far out of hand. I make less than one-half of what they do and I have three years of college. I was up in New York and had to work with them to set up a science display and it's nothing but complete and utter featherbedding.

William C. Bernasco, Hillcrest Avenue, Trenton, insurance salesman. I think it is unpatriotic. How can this country expect to move ahead in the world when everybody

THE TOY LADY

Artist, Writer, Too. One of the most persistent "best-sellers" on the nation's book-list is a volume called "A Home for Sandy," by Romney Gay.

"Sandy" is one of the—is it 30? or 35? One forgets. At any rate, it is one of the dozens of books written and illustrated by Miss Phyllis Britcher, alias "Romney Gay," the toy lady, artist and writer who runs the shop called Stuff n' Nonsense at 10 Moore Street in Princeton.

Miss Britcher, or Miss Gay, if you prefer, thinks she has written and illustrated some 35 books.

"I know I've written 29, but I think I wrote a few after I made that count, and I've lost track," she muses.

The volumes are designed for young readers who are still a bit shaky on their feet and who need the steadying hand of repetition. The trick, of course, is to keep the interest steady as well, and some indication of Miss Britcher's success in achieving this is her own steadiness on the best-selling list.

Peter's Pink Pig. Among Miss Britcher's works are such Gay fancies as "The Romney Gay ABC" in which children learn, under the "P's," that Peter painted pictures, one pink Polar bear, then a pig, a panda, a pony and a pear.

One of the best-hugged favorites, of course, is "The Tale of Corally Crothers," a young lady who has been in and out of more libraries than Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.

HOME IS UPSTAIRS: The Stuff n' Nonsense shop at 10 Moore Street is in a 200-year-old house, and the toy lady, Phyllis Britcher, lives in a cozy upstairs apartment which is full of sun and a fine collection of 19th-century family heirlooms. Over the fireplace is a "mural" of Nassau Hall, sketched by artist Phyllis Britcher. More about the toy lady in story, this page. (Staff Photo)

The inspiration for Corally came to Miss Britcher while she was wrestling with a headache. She jotted the idea down, stuffed it into a pigeonhole, forgot it and went on with her headache. Two years later, she remembered it, pulled it out of her desk and made it into a book.

"I'll Buy It." While it was still in the works, Miss Britcher talked one day with the representative of a publishing house for which she had illustrated some book covers.

"She bought my book then and there," Miss Britcher recalls. "She asked me whether I wanted a flat payment or royalties, and I didn't know too much about such things, so I took the flat payment. It was the wrong thing to have done, of course, but the publishers were very nice later and paid me royalties, too."

"Corally" keeps returning to Miss Britcher's life, although the book was written back in the '30s. One father, for example, wrote her an irritated letter asking how on earth the heroine's name was pronounced.

"I just named my baby daughter 'Corally,'" he wrote, testily, "and my wife and I keep fighting over how to pronounce it."

Then "Cinders." After "Corally" came "Cinders," a book that became a reader in spite of itself. Originally written to entertain and not to instruct, "Cinder" attracted the eye of some teachers who saw its possibilities, however, it had too many words in its text, and Miss Gay was asked to reduce its vocabulary to 50.

After this pruning exercise, the book was tried out on a group of children at Horace Mann School in New York. Its complex plot concerns the machinations of a pair of youngsters who are packing a suitcase with the help of a dog. At the end, after some unbearable suspense, the dog gets packed into the suitcase, and when this happened, the Horace Mann children lay on the floor, squealed with laughter and shouted, "Do it again! Do it again!" Romney Gay was in.

Since that time, Romney Gay books have been translated into Spanish ("Linda y Marco y Nevado, el perrito blanco") and even into Hebrew for use in Israeli schools.

"I guess you could say that I pre-dated the Little Golden Books," Miss Britcher observes, "my books were the first ones to have a picture on every page, the way the Golden books do now."

Writing and illustrating books kept "Romney Gay" busy for many years, but the Golden Books began to encroach on the field and so "Phyllis Britcher" took over. Although the books are lively and in print, and although "Sandy" was revised in 1955 and is still in well-thumbed use, Miss Britcher has given up writing.

Question Of The Week

wants to work only 25 hours a week? There may be some justification for it but I can't see it. Not at the moment, anyway.

Al Laller, 617 Concourse Circle, Ewing Township, mechanica engineer: I don' think it is good for the economy of the country which is based on our productivity. When you put only five hours a day on a job, you are only going to work about three. We figure on only six hours of work out of the men for an eight hour day.

Sidney Lichter, Little Silver, certified shorthand typist: I'm not in favor it it. What they are doing is working seven hours a day but getting paid for nine because the last two hours will be overtime. It's tricky and I don't think the public realizes yet what the full effects of this will be.

Richard Adams, Foulke Hall, University sophomore: It would be frightening to me to see it as a national work week. It seems pointless. I don't believe the general populace will be willing or even able to use that much free time constructively.

Acie C. Waldron, Franklin Park, chemist: It seems rather ridiculous to a certain extent. It seems like people are working less and less for more and more. Actually they are trying to get something for nothing and that isn't good.

MUSIC In Princeton

CONE WORK PLAYED

By Princeton Symphony. The second concert of the Princeton Symphony Orchestra's 1961-62 season, on Monday evening at McCarter Theatre, featured the first performance of Edward T Cone's "Nocturne and Rondo for Piano and Orchestra," with Mathilde McKinney as piano soloist.

On this occasion, as on similar previous ones, this orchestra, and its musical director, Nicholas Harsanyi, have again demonstrated the value and importance of a good, locally-oriented orchestra to the community's musical life. That this local orientation does not mean merely local interest has been frequently attested by the presence at its concerts of important musicians from out of town, although it hardly need be stressed that many of these performances would be important even if nobody came (fortunately, the latter is not the case).

Edward Cone's talents as composer, performer, lecturer and author are hardly news at this date, but the "Nocturne and Rondo" is perhaps his most impressive work heard so far, conceived on a large scale and carried out with impressive skill and authority. The scoring, both in details and in the climaxes, was clear and to the point, while the writing for piano was, not unexpectedly, idiomatic and gratifying, although of staggering difficulty.

The difficulties seemed to hold no terrors for Mrs. McKinney, who played the solo part as if it had been written for her, and supplied, in the appropriate place, a cadenza of her own composition, which added no little to the effectiveness of the work. Mrs. McKinney's son, Bruce, also deserves special praise for his admirable execution of the difficult and important first trumpet part.

The rest of the performers also did themselves proud, tracing their way through the treacherous varying meters with notable skill. The performance as a whole had the propulsion and enthusiasm demanded by a work with so many virtuosic aspects, individually and severally, all turned in a remarkable job.

The evening's highlight was the playing of the orchestra's first oboist, James Caldwell, in the Oboe Concerto of Alessandro (not Benedetto!) Marcello. Mr. Caldwell's clean, straightforward sound was a source of pleasure, although the performance as a whole had little to do with the niceties of baroque style. More attention to these problems would add a good deal to the Princeton Symphony's performances of such repertoire—it is hard to believe that good advice is not available locally on such matters.

The evening opened with the E major Overture to Beethoven's "Fidelio," and concluded with the Schubert "Unfinished" Symphony. It is also difficult to escape the feeling that such well-known, even overplayed, pieces as these represent the best use of this orchestra. Why not "Zur Weihe des Hauses" and the Schubert Sixth (or Fifth, or Fourth, or . . .)—or some of the Schubert Overtures. The woods are full of such material, which would do much to make the orchestra's concerts even more stimulating and adventurous than they are at present. As it stands, there is much for which to be thankful, as clearly demonstrated on Monday evening.

STUART DUNCAN, M. C.

At Festival of Song. Stuart Duncan, actor, impresario and sometime singer, will be master of ceremonies for the United Fund Festival of Song to be given next Wednesday and Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in McCarter Theatre.

Besides serving as master of ceremonies, Mr. Duncan will appear in one of the Festival's numbers on the light side—an excerpt from the "Guys and Dolls" production given last spring in McCarter.

Other performers for the Festival of Song will be the Westminster Chapel Choir, the Princeton High School Choir, the Columbus Boychoir, the Nassoons, the Palmer Squares, the Opposite Sextette and parts of the current Triangle Club show.

Herbert Hobler, chairman of the Festival, has announced that Mayor Henry S. Patterson of the Borough; John S. Mount, vice-chairman of Township Committee; and Edgar Gemmell, vice-president of Princeton University, all will appear briefly on the Festival stage.

CHORAL FESTIVAL SET

By University Glee Club. On Sunday, February 11, the first winter choral festival sponsored by the Princeton University Glee Club will open at McCarter Theatre. The choir of Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Va. will join the glee club to create a chorus of 160 voices. The concert will begin at 3:30.

Vocal soloists from Princeton will be Ruth Bent and Sheila Marks, sopranos, and Woodford Waeschs, bass. Other soloists will be Robert White, counter-tenor of the New York Pro Musica, and Paul Solem, a tenor from New York. Members of a Baroque-type orchestra will include Joseph Kovacs, concertmaster; Judith Martin, oboe and oboe d'amore; Robert Heinrich, D trumpeter of the New York Cantata Singers; and John Harbison, Princeton harpsichordist.

The program will consist of Bach's "Magnificat," and the first Princeton performance of Purcell's "Come Ye Sons of Art," the 1694 birthday ode for Queen Mary. Gordon Page is conductor of the Mary Baldwin Choir, which will sing selections during the second half of the program.

White began his career at the age of 7 when he led blind blues singers around the cities and towns of the south learning from them the Negro folk songs, blues and spirituals that are the heart of jazz.

Tickets for the Josh White performance may be ordered by mail from C-K, Box 591, Princeton, or purchased at the University Store. Prices are $3.30, $2.95 and $2.55 for orchestra seats; $2.95, $2.55 and $2 for balcony and $1.50 for a limited number of "restricted view" seats.

Romney Gay, however, and such anthologies as "Our English Language," with a Gay poem and "Read To Me Again," the Child Study association anthology with a Corally Cruthers story, keep succeeding generations of children informed about the activities of Gay characters.

After she stopped writing, Miss Britcher ran a bookshop in Greenwich Village for 10 years gradually adding toys to her stock until things reached the point where customers would wince at the sight of a teddy-bear and say "What's going on here!"

Finally, she decided to sell the shop and leave congested New York for the country. A friend suggested Princeton, and in 1954, the toy lady opened the Stuff 'n Nonsense store.

Miss Britcher is shy about discussing her books and her pictures, but customers who visit the shop for the first time always comment on the charming pastel sketches of boys and girls that brighten the white walls. They were done, of course, by "Romney Gay."

NEW COMMITTEE NAMED

THEY HAVE A TITLE IN MIND: These five Princetonians, who began the season in starting roles, have rebounded from early defeats and are taking dead aim on a third straight Ivy championship. From the left: Art Hyland, Jack Whitehouse, Captain Al Kaemmerlen, Bill Haarlow and Pete Campbell.

STRETCH RUN STARTS

For Basketball Team. A pair of home games in Dillon Gymnasium Friday and Saturday marks the first of five straight weekends which will see Princeton's basketball team in action on consecutive evenings. The rejuvenated Tigers entertain tail-end Brown Friday at 8 and then must be sure to knock off league-leading Yale Saturday in order to retain a good shot at the title.

The Bruins have a standout in Captain Mike Cingiser, the only player in their history to be named twice to the all-Ivy team, and a 6-7 operative in Gene Barth. Other than that, they are short of ability, particularly with 6-5 Greg Heath out with a broken hand. The Tigers topped them by 82-59 at Providence last month and are prohibitive favorites to repeat.

Yale has developed into one of the most underrated teams in the east, following a fine holiday tour with a fast start in Ivy action. The Blue really clobbered Princeton at New Haven three weeks ago, romping to a 83-61 victory.

Now the answer to how well the Elis can do on the road will be provided this weekend. While Princeton plays Brown Friday night, Yale will tackle Penn at the Palestra, seeking to repeat the four-point victory it recorded over the Quakers on January 13.

Elis Impressive. Fine play by Captain Bill Madden, an all-Ivy choice last winter, and a group of able sophomores is responsible for Yale's share of first place. The newcomers to the varsity include Rick Kaminsky, Dave Schumacher and Denny Lynch, with others lending bench strength that Princeton lacks.

Harvard is currently in first division with Cornell, Yale, Princeton and Penn, but the Crimson does not figure to remain there. Which of the four others will become the 1962 champion is a difficult question to answer, although any one of the quartet could point the way by ability to knock off one of the others on its home court.

TIGERS CATCH FIRE

And Penn Is Singed. A spectacular second half shooting performance which saw it connect for 69 percent of its shots in the first ten minutes gave Princeton a one-sided triumph over Penn Saturday. The Tigers increased their 41-29 half-time lead to margins of 54-30, 72-40 and 87-55 before the reserves took over and Penn quickly narrowed the gap to a 93-81 final.

Topflight defensive play, ability to control the game completely after the first 12 minutes, and double figures credited to all five starters were the component parts of the victory for Jake McCandless' five. Penn had been weakened by the loss of four players through academic ineligibility, but it is doubtful that a Red and Blue squad at full strength could have cooled off the torrid Tigers that night.

Pete Campbell led the scoring parade, with 26 points, after failing to get a basket in the first seven minutes. Having been held to a mere two out of 17 in the loss at the Palestra last month, he connected for 11 of 17 last weekend.

Big Al Kaemmerlen, working out of a high pivot, set up much of the victors' attack, and contributed 15 points of his own, as did Bill Haarlow. Jack Whitehouse added 12, while Art Hyland (see "We Congratulate") was good for 19.

SKATERS COME CLOSE

With Tie, One-Goal Defeat. The defensive difficulties that were expected to plague Princeton throughout the season were not in evidence last weekend as the Tiger hockey team gave a good account of itself against a pair of well-regarded New England outfits.

Providence College was held to a 1-1 overtime tie, a pair of first period goals accounting for all the scoring. The home team tallied first, Johnny Cook getting the equalizer less than a minute later. In the overtime round, the Friars had ten shots on the Princeton goal to none for Princeton, which lost an apparent game-winner when the referee ruled the puck had been kicked into the cage.

Before some 3000 fans at McHugh Forum in Chestnut Hill, Mass., Saturday night, Princeton took a 2-1 lead into the third period but could not quite make it stand up. Dick Springs and Doug Davis overcame the Eagles' early advantage with a pair of second period goals.

B. C. then tied the score with less than eight minutes to go and won with 12 seconds left. Once again, goalie Billy Hill gave a great performance.

This week's Wednesday night game with Brown, in which it hoped to earn revenge for an earlier 3-2 loss, will be followed for the Tigers by games against Dartmouth and the St. Nicholas Hockey Club. The contest with the Green is scheduled for Hanover Saturady night, while the Nicks will be here next Wednesday at 8.

A five-way scramble for runner-up honors will highlight Ivy hockey action during February. If the Tigers can top a defensively-weak Dartmouth entry on Saturday, they'll be as good a bet as any to finish second to heavily-favored Harvard.

PHS STUNS EWING

For Ninth Win. If the Ewing High School basketball team had hopes Friday evening of atoning for a 61-48 defeat it suffered here earlier in the season, it was doomed to disappointment. The visiting Little Tigers unnerved, outran and outshot the Blue Devils again, beating them this time by 25 points, 75-50.

Ahead for the surging Blue and White, who show no signs of tiring, is a Tuesday evening contest at South Brunswick. It will be number 14 of a 21-game schedule. The team will return home February 9, opposing Hunterdon Central in another evening contest.

Coach Tony Borzok's Little Tigers have now won nine of their last 11 games. In the entire preceding two campaigns, his teams won a total of four. The lopsided won and lost record of PHS this season will more than qualify it for the Group 3 competition in the post-season NJSIAA tournament.

The remarkable turnabout of the Little Tigers can be traced in large measure to speed and more speed. "Coaches keep coming up and asking me where I got all my players this year," said Borzok, "and I tell them I had them all the time but they just weren't ready to run. This year they're running well."

Borzok has employed a full court press from the opening of each game this season with tremendous effect. These relentless "pinching" tactics of the PHS players serve to harrass the opposition and force it to make bad passes and other costly mistakes. When this happens, the swift-moving Little Tigers can call on a well-drilled fast break to turn enemy mistakes into two points.

Such was the case Friday against Ewing. The visitors jumped to a 9-0 lead and never let up, although Ewing did fight back to tie the score at 13 all. From there on, the relentless press tactics of Princeton, its superior rebounding, and sharper shooting were more than the Blue Devils could contain.

The double barreled offense of George Tucker and Charlie Pemberton once again leveled the other five as it has in several games this year. Tucker hit for eight baskets and was 12 for 13 from the foul line

AS WE SEE IT!

By John Conole

You'll earn a fortune between your first and last pay checks. This sounds like a lot of money, and it is. For a man earning $5000 a year, it's $200,000 in forty short years. How much of this should be yours to keep?

Everyone likes to save money. The problem is saving it and keeping it saved. Most people try to save in banks. That is all well and good. The trouble is that it is usually deposit and withdrawal, put and take—up and down like a roller coaster. We offer what many believe to be the best way to save.

There is a plan that gives you a definite dollar goal to save for. You save on the installment plan to buy a definite sum of money for future delivery. Money whenever you will need it most.

AS WE SEE IT, one of three things must happen with any savings plan. Either you live to see your plan completed, die before completing it, or quit for some unforseeable reason. Our guaranteed savings plan provides for all three possibilities.

We can help you save and then spend. It's just like building a house and paying for it in installments. If you are really interested, why not give us a try? There is no obligation, of course. Mercer-Princeton Realty Company, Inc., 21 Chambers Street, WA 1-7282.

WE Congratulate

ART HYLAND

Princeton Guard

If every player on a basketball team outscored his personal opponent, 19 to 6, the outcome of a "crucial contest" would not be long in doubt. It was that kind of performance Saturday by Art Hyland that helped Princeton roll to an easy triumph over Pennsylvania in a game the Tigers had to win to stay in the running for Ivy laurels.

Hyland pared the scoring efforts of highly-regarded Sid Amira to half a dozen points while helping himself to 19. Last March at the Palestra, it was Amira's standout performance that paced the Quakers to a decisive 88-63 victory over Princeton and enabled them to close out the season with ten straight victories.

In the course of the one-sided triumph last weekend, Hyland set up many a field goal with his deft passing and canny sense of offense. His own shooting was good for seven of 12 attempts—the kind of performance that has him pegged at around 40% for the season and a fine 15.2 game average.

A basketball rarity at Princeton in that he broke into a tight starting lineup as a sophomore, Hyland's steady play and 12.2 scoring average won him a berth on the second All-Ivy team. In his first season, the 20-year old resident of Allentown, Pa., averaged 43% from the floor and 73% at the foul line — both standout performances.

The Princeton scheme of attack calls for him to bring the ball down court — occasionally against a full press that requires top-flight dribbling and ball control. He is also one of the deep men in a freeze if the Tigers are working to protect a slim lead. In both instances, loss of possession can turn the tide the other way.

A small man (5-11) in a big man's game, Hyland is proof that sheer ability can be an invaluable substitute for height and reach. In the five rugged weekends ahead, his dependable, all-around play will mean much to the Tigers as they drive for an unprecedented third straight title.

Sports In Princeton

to lead both teams with 28 points. Only 5'9" but built like a fullback (which he was), Pemberton hit with his jump shot to add 16 more points.

The game also marked the return of Hank Schmidt. A nose injury had forced Hank to sit out two games and his absence, plus that of regular Danny Brown, had punched a big hole in the Little Tiger attack. Ewing for its part, was forced to play without the services of three of its regulars.

CONDITION BIG FACTOR

For Hun Five. "Shape is going to be a big factor in our games this week," reported Dan Barren, Hun School basketball coach, who is concerned over his players' ability to run after an eight-day layoff for mid-term examinations. "We haven't been on the court since January 20," said Barren.

With the holiday and exam interruptions behind it, Hun will get going again Saturday when it travels to Newtown, Pa. to play George School. Starting with this game, there will be no let up. In February, the Red and Black will playe eight co.tests of its 15-game schedule in 24 days—a game every three days.

The George School contest will also mark the end of the first round of play in the Penn-Jersey Conference. Hun is currently 3-1 in league play, having lost only to unbeaten Germantown. "If we can get by Pennington (Hun played Pennington Prep Wednesday) and George School," said Barren "I feel it will mean a great difference for the rest of the season."

"George School isn't going to be any pushover," observed Barren. "They'll have a home court advantage and they have some big boys who can give us a lot of trouble. Even though we beat them last year, they have had some close games this season and they are going to be tough."

Another question mark facing Barren is co-captain Gary Grover. A recurring shoulder injury has forced Grover to miss the last two games and only an operation can put Gary in permanent repair. "Gary never scored a lot, but he had hustle and initiated our plays so we're going to miss him," said Barren. "I hope though, to be able to play him in and out for a little while whenever I need him."

More Accurate. Overall, Barren reported that the shooting of the team has improved in the last two games and that his bench has gotten stronger. "We're shooting in high 30's now, which is an improvement, and Guy Wirsig, Jim Steiger and Dave Beezley have really taken up the slack. They have helped keep the game from getting out of control whenever I have had to give the starters a rest."

Also singled out by Barren for showing improvement was C. A. Hale. Not very tall, Hale, a backcourt man, has cut down on the number of shots he has taken and has hit on 50 percent of his attempts in Hun's last two outings. "He's coming along nicely," said Barren. "His ball-handling has improved and his assists are up in the past couple of games."

Hun will also take to road on Tuesday when it plays Bryn Athyn. The game will be a Penn-Jersey contest, the first of the second round of play. Earlier in the season, Hun defeated Bryn Athyn, 42-32, at the Seminary gym.

TWO TEAMS HOME

At Lawrenceville. Lawrenceville's basketball and hockey teams will be at home Saturday, following the mid-year exam break. The swimming team will face Haverford School away.

The basketball team will meet Blair Academy on Saturday at 2:30. The Red and Black will be seeking its third win in nine starts. Next Wednesday, the basketball team will play Croydon Hall Academy at home.

The hockey team will play Wissahickon Hockey Club on Saturday at 3 on Lavino Rink. The team was scheduled to play Hill on Wednesday. The Red and Black skaters have a 2-6 record.

FIRST PLACE JAMMED

At End of First Half. At the end of the first round of play in the YMCA Research and Industrial Basketball League, no fewer than four of the League's seven teams were tied for first place with 4-2 records. Bunched at the top were RCA Labs, defending champions; Educational Testing Service, Sannino A. C. and the YMCA.

In the first game, played at the Princeton High gymnasium, RCA Labs lost their second game in a row as ETS edged them, 42-40, in an exciting game. Al Meyers and Clarence Gilbert combined for 27 points to pace ETS, which led all the way. The Labs' top scorer, Joe Burns, hit for a game-high 17 points but this time it wasn't enough.

Institute for Defense Analyses defeated win'ess Food Machinery and Chemical in the next game, 37-20, in a battle of the tailenders. But, by exhibiting contiouous improvement in winning its second straight, IDA (2-4) served no-

A four-year veteran of league competition, Delneso works in the shipping department of the D. Van Nostrand Co., while Hibbard, who has been bowling three years in league action, works for ETS. They both bowl in the Classic, Travelling and "A" Leagues in Princeton, and Delneso also rolls in the "B" loop.

News Of The CHURCHES

KNOW YOUR PASTOR

Meet Mr. Cope. The Rev. Robert L. Cope, minister of the Unitarian Church of Princeton since last April, is an intense, energetic man with an interest in education that almost matches his devotion to the ministry.

"I believe in an educative ministry," he said "I like preaching, but I don't think a church should be a listening post. People don't change and grow by listening. I believe a church should be a place where people are stimulated through the interaction of individuals, into searching for the truth about themselves."

The Rev. Mr. Cope has already started some programs at the Unitarian Church which carry out this philosophy, and he has plans for several more. One program, which he described as 'typical of the kind of thing I want to be doing," is a series of ten Tuesday morning sessions for mothers during which they study a book entitled, "The Questioning Child and Religion."

"This sort of thing is far better than lectures," he said, "because it provides a situation in which people can learn from one another."

Enthusiastic Reaction. The course was first given last October and November, and met with such an enthusiastic reaction that it is being offered again this February and March. In addition, those who completed the first course have now signed up for another, called "Religion and the Arts."

"I also hope to schedule various cultural events as part of our church program," Mr. Cope said. "We made a start on New Year's Day when an exhibit of art work by members of the church was staged as part of an open house program. It was a first class show, too!"

Mr. Cope's interest in education is one reason, he said, that he is happy to be in Princeton. "In addition to being minister of the church," he explained, "I am chaplain for Unitarian-Universalist students at Princeton University, which means that I am involved with the educational activity there."

A feature of the university which particularly pleases him, Mr. Cope added, is Firestone Library. "I love to read," he said, "and it's wonderful to have acess to a great library."

Raised in New Jersey. A native of New York City, Mr. Cope grew up in Teaneck, N. J. "I first came to Princeton as a member of the Teaneck High School tennis team," he said. "Our team only made the semi-finals in the state competition held here, but I really enjoyed visiting Princeton. When I received the call to the church here, I still had that memory of an exceptionally lovely town."

Mr. Cope was graduated from St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., in February, 1945, and from St. Lawrence Theological Seminary in June, 1946. He then did graduate study for two years at Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary in New York, under a scholarship from the Universalist Church.

His first position, which he held from 1948 to 1950, was as assistant minister of the Universalist Church on Central Park West, New York City.

"On my lunch hour, I used to indulge in my hobby of bird watching in Central Park," Mr. Cope said. "In spite of being in the city, it's a fine place to see birds—one time I saw 12 species of warbler in one lunch hour! Incidentally, Princeton is a good place for bird watching too, as it's right on the migratory path."

Active in Merger. From New York he went to Buffalo as minister of the Universalist Church there. He stayed until 1957, and during that time joined with Dr. Herbert Hitchen, minister of the Buffalo Unitarian Church, in merging the two churches into the single Unitarian-Universalist Church of Greater Buffalo.

"This was one of the grass roots events which eventually stimulated the merger of the denominations on a national basis,' Mr. Cope said. The national merger took place last Spring.

The "tremendous influx" of children into the Buffalo church, Mr. Cope said, revived the interest in religious education which he had acquired at Columbia and prompted him to accept a call in 1957 to the faculty of St. Lawrence Seminary.

"I was professor of religious education and practical theology," he explained, "and I really enjoyed the work tremendously. But after a few years I became impatient. I wanted to go out and do somethiog, rather than just talk about it. When the call came from the Princeton church, I was delighted."

Double Life. "I think I'll always want to do some educational work, though," Mr. Cope said. "I do some writing—in 1959 I edited a national Universalist-Unitarian Lenten anthology, "Indictments and Invitations"—and I also like conference work.

"This summer, for instance, I'm going to teach religious education and theology at the Starr King conferenre in California. I guess you would call it a kind of 'double life,' and that's the way I like it!"

ter and Don McCoy, won its first competitive ping-pong match, defeating Hightstown handily, 15-2. The match consisted of both singles and doubles play.

HAMILTON TENTH VICTIM Of Little Tigers. "We had to fight for this one," said Tony Borzok, PHS coach, after the Princeton High-Hamilton basketball game played Tuesday afternoon at the PHS gymnasium. "They made us play their kind of game—tried to keep us from running—and our kids were taking the bait."

There was no denying that there were some anxious moments for Coach Borzok in the final quarter. With less than four minutes to play, Hamilton, winner of only three of 11 outings, trailed the Blue and White by the slim margin of four points, 68-64. That was as close as the Hornets were to get, however, as George Tucker and John Barbour hit for baskets and Hank Schmidt tossed in two free throws with five seconds to go to pull it out and make it a 76-65 final for the home team.

Some sterling shooting by Tucker under the basket and a fine bench performance were the chief engineers of Princeton High's tenth victory in 12 games. Tucker was superb in dunking 37 points. He stole the ball for easy lay-ups, tapped in rebounds, grabbed off rebounds and on one occasion, threw the ball over his head with his back to the basket for two points.

But PHS also needed that big assist from the reserves. "The bench came in and did it again," said Borzok in acknowledging their fine play. With regulars John Bensinger and Charlie Pemberton playing at half speed following bouts with the flu, John Barbour, Larry Madden and Don Truesdell managed to prevent Hamilton from pulling an upset. Among them, they scored 24 points.

borah Porter, Susan Schafer and Bonnie Lee Stewart will participate. Troop leaders are Mrs. Henry Frank and Mrs. Matthew Glinka, assisted by Senior Scout Aide Ellen Frank.

Working on History. Mrs. J. G. Woodward, 239 Riverside Drive, is compiling a history of the Girl Scouts in Princeton, and would like information from members and leaders of early Princeton troops, which date back to 1919, and from former members of the Council, which was founded in 1935.

Those having such information, and photographs or uniforms from the period, should telephone Mrs. Woodward at WA 4-1331. The history will be part of the presentation at the annual dinner, to be held Monday, March 19, at 6:30 at the Methodist Church.

The dinner will commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Girl Scouts, with the slogan, "Honor the Past—Serve the Future." Tickets are available at the Scout office, 4 Green Street, and are being distributed through neighborhood chairmen.

SEWERS "DISGRACEFUL"

Need Maintenance. At Thursday's meeting of the Township Board of Health, the "disgraceful condition" of the sewer system was cited, and Dr. William Kleinberg, chairman, was asked to write the sewer operating committee and both mayors for prompt action "to give the community a proper and legal sanitary system."

There may be illegal floor and roof drains connected to the sewer system, and Dr. Kleinberg pointed out the existing system is not properly maintained. The Township has five or more illegal overflows, and little effort has been made to eliminate them.

In addition, provision for emergencies is inadequate. The Board agreed a maintenance crew with pumps and hoses should be created to prevent damage to property and health hazards. The present pumping equipment is insufficient to lift the heavy overflow to the treatment plant during peak periods, and the plant does not have the capacity to take the excess.

New Jersey Testing Laboratories has been engaged to make infiltration studies. Arthur Brokaw of the Sewer Operating Committee reported to the board that the main problem is the excessive amount of storm or ground water entering the system during heavy rain. If the lines are sound, he would like assistance from both boards to make a house-to-house survey for illegal connections.

LIONS TO DANCE

February 10 at Miss Fine's. Two orchestras will provide continuous music at the Princeton Lions Club seventh annual dance.

It will be held Saturday, February 10, at Miss Fine's School. Ticket information may be obtained from the committee chairman, M. George Habeeb, WA 4-5190.

"Roll Out The Barrel." The Princeton Jaycees will visit the Pennington chapter Monday through the "Roll Out The Barrel" project, sponsored by a Newark brewery. In its fourth year, the "Barrel" gains a sum of money, donated by the chapter which is visited.

The chapter making the highest amount uses the funds for a charitable purpose. The meeting is part of a campaign designed to advance inter-chapter relations. All Jaycees and men between 21 and 35 are invited to attend the meeting.

NOMINEES CHOSEN

For Hospital Trustees. Five cadidates have been named by the Princeton Hospital Corporation nominating committee to fill the five vacant posts coming up on the Board of Trustees.

Two of the nominees are incumbents. They are George W. Conover, treasurer of the Board, and Laurence C. Ward, Jr., who was appointed last fall to complete the unexpired term of J. Forster Abeel.

The other three candidates are Dr. Aims C. McGuinness, 721 Prospect Avenue, John C. Whitwell, 9 Pardoe Road and James S. Hill, 152 Galbreath Drive.

Election of new Board members will be held at the annual meeting of the Hospital Corporation on February 26.

OPEN LETTER TO HOME SEEKERS

I have been corrected by a knowing Princetonian on the Welsh definition of "Llanfair." It seems "llan" means church and "fair" means Mary. I acknowledge his correction! The banker who suggested the name for this area tells me he used the first two syllables of the Welsh town "Llanfairpwllgwyngyll." We still think it should mean "fair land."

Anyhow—whether your ideal is a home surrounded by forest-type trees, rare specimen trees, fruit trees or open to the sun, whether you like a brook, a slightly sloping plot, or a knoll—we have what you want.

Our NEW builders are bending every effort to make plans available that will please our very discriminating Princeton people—the traditional Colonial exteriors are exquisite, the interiors very livable. The new farm Colonial with gambrel roof and five bedrooms, rec. room plus den, is a family home in the true sense of the word.

Don't wait for models—they sell before they're built—although we are starting two. Make an appointment with us to see these plans, and if you have any doubts, let us introduce you to the new builders whose sincerity will impress you, whose painstaking attention to detail and fine finishing will satisfy you.

Your own plans, if you'd rather, can be used, and an estimate will be given you in short order. Our aim is to please you and to make this an area of which we all can be proud. May we hear from you?

Sincerely,
Joyce Woodruff, Manager
